What is Domestic Violence?

Domestic Violence is a pattern of physical, emotional, verbal, financial and/or sexual abuse to gain power and control within a relationship. A relationship can involve a partner, family member or caretaker.

Does Your Partner...

Get jealous easily?
Control every aspect of your life?
Cut you off from friends and family?
Blame others for their problems?
Constantly criticize you?
Threaten to hurt you, your loved ones, or pets?
Physically, emotionally or verbally abuse you?

What is Sexual Assault?

Sexual assault is any unwanted sexual contact that includes rape, attempted rape, intentional sexual touching, incest or molestation. It is committed without consent and often through the use of force, intimidation or coercion. Assailants can be strangers, spouses, acquaintances, friends, family members or anyone else. Sexual assault is not about sexual desire, it is about power and control.

You may experience...

Physical reactions: aches and pains, irritation, illness, stomach pains

Emotional reactions: shock and disbelief, fear, anger, powerlessness, and self blame

Mental reactions: difficulty making decisions, flashbacks, confusion

If this happens to you or a friend.....

Remember it is NOT your fault.

You Are Not Alone!

RESPECT Intimate Partner Abuse Education Program

RESPECT is New Hope's state-certified educational program for perpetrators of domestic violence. This program addresses the core belief systems of perpetrators, as well as the abuse they have used in their intimate partnerships. Perpetrators participate in a minimum of 40 weekly group sessions, designed to hold them accountable for their violent and controlling behaviors, and to prevent violence in their current and future relationships. The program focuses on root causes, accountability, and developing ways to maintain non-violent interaction, and refrain from all abusive behaviors in their relationships. To learn more about our RESPECT program or to inquire about joining a RESPECT group, please call our toll-free RESPECT line at (877) 222-0083
